PROGRAM

THANK-YOU!

A truckload of “thank-yous” are due to a number of sponsors and people whose vision and contributions made these screenings possible.

- City Environmental Management Centre of Excellence as the primary sponsor and instigator.
- Local Cinema for providing the venue, screenings and professional support.
- City, Environmental Management Branch for organizing, logistics and programming.
- Local publication for publicity and selling tickets.
- Local retailer for publicity and selling tickets.
- You, the viewer, for making the time, taking the initiative and cultivating your interest

WELCOME TO FILM FESTIVAL!

We’re glad you took a break from your spring clean-up and other activities to sample these “truly trashy” films.

This week, we hope you’ll get a taste of award-winning films on waste.

Meet a whole host of folks knee-deep and deeply entrenched in waste, its uses and abuses. Meet artists turning garbage into art, meet an average family who saves their garbage for three months, meet generations of people who scavenge and live on a Guatemala landfill, and meet Chinese workers dealing with your old computer. And much more!

We hope your time here is engaging and challenging. Please glance through the program to see what else is showing this week. We’d love to see you again. Please share this program with a friend and reuse or recycle it.

WANT MORE?

Check out more great waste events. They’re happening now, or very soon!

WASTE: THE SOCIAL CONTEXT

This film festival is presented in conjunction with the international conference, Waste: The Social Context ‘01. The conference attracts delegates from around the world. Hello delegates! Welcome to our City! We’re glad we can share our theatre with you this evening. More information about the conference can be found at: [REDACTED]

Both the conference and this film festival are produced by the City Environmental Management Centre of Excellence, an organization designed to promote advanced waste management techniques throughout the world. List of partners and url of their website.
